

Ghost Story

On a dark, chilly night three kids were walking down a narrow, musty smelling ally. They suddenly saw a man running toward them in terror. The man was screaming, “Don’t go down there! The witch did it! The witch did it!” The three kids’ curiosity grew, so they fearfully continued walking down the dark, narrow, musty smelling ally. As they inched their way down the cold, dark ally, scattered on the ground around them were eyeballs! (pass around bowl of peeled grapes) They screamed and ran forward; they stopped and wanted to turn back around. As they looked ahead they saw the remains of skulls (pass around bowl of head of cabbage) lying on the dark, dirty concrete. The kids thought that the skulls were not real, but as they stepped closer to the skulls they saw a large pile of brains (pass out bowl of cooked spaghetti) in the corner. The kids ran with terror into the darkness. They felt the crunching of dry, brittle bones beneath their feet (pass out bowl of pretzel sticks). They could hear a faint laughing that grew louder and louder as they eagerly ran toward some form of life. AAHH HA HA HA HA AAHH HA HA HA HA !!! The kids reached out into the darkness and felt a long, narrow nose. (pass around bowl with large carrot) As their eyes focused, they discovered that it was the witch. Frozen with fright, the kids stood there with their jaws to the ground in awe. The witch slowly reached into her pockets and exclaimed, “Trick or Treat!”, and handed the kids pieces of candy. (pass around some candy)
